I think that this activity was fun and interesting. It made me get out of my comfort zone by talking to someone I wouldn't normally talk to. It helped me learn many new things about my partner that despite being in the same class for years I did not know. It was a little weird being partnered up with Andrés. The activity was interesting because it was not the thing, we normally do for value projects. I think that this activity was fun overall.

I liked the activity because I got to talk to someone with whom I do not normally talk. It also made me realize new things about my partner that I did not know. I also liked the fact that the activity was different from what we normally do, so it was not boring. I think that the activity was interesting, so I liked it.

I learned many new things from my partner. Some of them were unexpected. Some things were unexpected. Despite being in the same class for a long time we don't talk much. Now, it is even less because of the pandemic.

For me it was not that difficult to answer the questions to my partner. We have known each other since 4th grade so it was not too awkward. We answered each other and learned new things about each other. It wasn't that difficult. In fact, it was easy, because we have known each other for a very long time.

16. Define tolerance and respect in your own words.

Tolerance: It is accepting someone with their flaws and goods.

Respect: It is treating others how you would like to be treated.

PART IV Family time (20pts)

Ask two people from your family. You must have two different answers.

Aunt: I believe that both are values that go hand in hand and are practiced together. Both are important because they complement each other in order to have a social coexistence that is as adequate as possible.

For its part, respect for me is being able to understand that others have different opinions and attitudes, it is accepting that we all have the right to be treated with dignity. However, respect has a super important part because it also teaches me to set limits and this will determine the way others treat me and vice versa. I believe that it is the ability to accept the entire cultural scheme of the human being.

On the other hand, tolerance is another complementary value to the previous one, which helps us control the practice of respect, since others have ideas contrary to ours, because when we do not have tolerance we easily lose control of ourselves and this then causes lack of respect and we can become imposing people; for me it is one of the most important factors to put into practice, since it allows us to live together in a more correct way, but perhaps one of the most complicated values because trying to tolerate can also make us lose patience. Tolerance when we learn to control it, even if not completely, can even give us peace of mind.

What is tolerance?

1. It is accepting and tolerating many things, but there is still a limit.
2. It is accepting others' flaws and not judging them for it.

What is respect?

1. It is being considerate towards someone or something else.
2. It is treating others well.

Why do you think these values are important in life?

1. To keep good relationships with other people.
2. If we didn't have them we would often have fights with other people.

PART V (20pts)

Evidence: Paste the photo you took during the interview with your partner.
